

Fiberglass Field Services

Expanding our services to better serve our customers.

The use of fiberglass components in plants of all types has grown tremendously over the past few years. Products which were commonly steel, wood, concrete, etc. have been replaced with fiberglass and the usage of this material continues to expand.

We have been involved in the manufacture of fiberglass components for over 30 years. We are well known for our knowledge of fiberglass manufacturing methods and for the supply of quality fiberglass components.

We have always offered field service as a part of our business. However, it has often been offered only in relation to the installation or service of our own products.

We believe it is time for us to expand this portion of our business and make the benefits of our years of experience and knowledge available to the various users of fiberglass in their installations.

We now employ full time certified fiberglass technicians for field work assignments. These technicians are available to assist you with your fiberglass installation, training or service needs. They are also on call for immediate dispatch to your jobsite in case of emergencies.
